NEW STREET CAR ORDINANCE READ

Council Passes Document To Second Reading

8-MONTHS CLAUSE

30 Days to Elapse Before Ordinance is Law

The long-argued traction franchise, verbal agreement of which was reached a month ago, was submitted to the city commission in finally drafted form today by City Attorney V. J. Wistner. It was passed to the second reading. A copy was mailed to President C. H. Bossler of the Port Arthur Traction company at Dayton, Ohio.

Thirty days is required to elapse between first and third readings, and the second reading may not be given until Bossler's reply is received.

Extension Provided The franchise read today is in the identical form as agreed to in the conference between Bossler, the city commission and the Chamber of Commerce traction committee, and an early reply of formal approval is expected. The franchise as mutually accepted contained many erasures and insertions, and the document read today merely has these typed out.

A month has elapsed between the verbal agreement and the franchise submission. Street trolleys will be extended from Procter street down Beaumont avenue to Thirteenth street, then on Thirteenth street to Florida avenue. The proposed trackless trolley, in reality a bus operating with electric overhead, will operate from Procter street to Seventh street on Beaumont avenue and then on Seventh street to Florida avenue.

The franchise provides that these lines are to be in operation eight months after completion of paying on the $1,030,000 bond issue case to be appealed to the supreme court. The traction company has 30 days in which to accept the franchise after passage by the city, and 90 days thereafter in which to begin work.

WOMAN, SHOT, WILL RECOVER

Note Says She Was Tired Of Living

"I was tired of living and felt I was in the way." This was the reason advanced by Mrs. Oleta Delcumber, 20, 119 Thomas boulevard, to Officer Shepard of the police department for an attempt to take her life by shooting yesterday, Shepard said. A note found in the house near a .32 automatic pistol gave the same reason, officers said. It was unsigned.

The woman was rushed to Mary Gates hospital and last night returned to her home.

Two shots were fired. Mrs. Delcumber told Shepard, he said, that she had tried to shoot herself in the heart but so nervous she missed her aim, the bullet entering her left leg. A second bullet went into the floor.

Port Arthur Gets 1925 Intracoastal Canal Meet

OVER INVITATIONS from Corpus Christi, Beaumont and Galveston, delegates to the twentieth annual convention of the Intra-coastal Canal Association accepted the bid of Port Arthur for the 1925 gathering, which, it is believed, will be the victory meeting of the canal project.

George N. Bliss, member of the Intra-coastal canal association's executive committee and board of directors, extended the invitation to the association to hold the twenty-first annual convention in Port Arthur, and the delegates accepted in the closing session of the 1924 meeting, held last Friday and Saturday in New Orleans.

"It will be the biggest thing ever held in this section, with men of national prominence and delegates from all sections of Louisiana and Texas attending," Bliss said today. "We are going to try and get all the members of the rivers and harbors committee in congress to come to Port Arthur for the convention, and at least 200 visitors will be here next year."

Confidence that congress will pass the rivers and harbors bill, carrying the $16,000,000 appropriation for the intra-coastal canal to be constructed from New Orleans to Corpus Christi, during the short session convening December 6 until March 3 was the key note of the New Orleans meeting, the greatest in the history of the 20 years of the association's history, Bliss said.

"An even greater meeting of the association will be the one next year to be held in Port Arthur if the appropriation for the canal is passed by congress during its next session, for while the New Orleans meeting was in the nature of a jubilee, the 1925 meeting seems destined to be the victory celebration. A number of congressmen, senators and U. S. government engineers are expected to attend the convention here," he declared.

The executive committee of the intra-coastal association will meet in Houston within the next 10 days or two weeks, upon the call of C. S. E. Holland, president of the association since its organization 20 years ago, when program and plans for the 1925 meeting will be sketched.

Other Port Arthurians attending the New Orleans convention included Fred P. Dodge, member of the board of directors of the association; Munger T. Ball, of the Sabine Towing company, and E. Y. Taylor, manager of the traffic department of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping.

Brothers-in-law Are Found Dead In Bed, Victims of Strokes

Father and Uncle of Mrs. J. H. McCorkle of Port Arthur Die Suddenly In Beaumont Homes

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 20.—Death during the past night claimed two pioneer Beaumonters, brothers-in-law, under strikingly similar circumstances. John C. Ward, 72, being found dead in bed by his wife at 3 a. m., and John E. Jiroe, 77, brother of Ward's wife, was discovered dead in his bed a few minutes later. Both were victims of heart strokes.

Both men apparently were in the best of health Sunday, Ward going on a fishing trip, and retired early. Jiroe spent Sunday visiting friends in the city, strolling around the streets, and neither complained of being ill.

Mrs. Ward awakened during the night and found her husband's body cold. Summoning members of the household and a physician, it was found Ward was dead, the physician expressing the belief that death occurred about midnight as Ward slept. A few minutes later Jiroe was found dead in bed in his home.

Jiroe was born in Beaumont 77 years ago, and spent his entire life in the city, while Ward removed to Beaumont in 1858, sixty-six years ago. Ward's daughter, Mrs. J. H. McCorkle, of 1111 Lake Shore drive, Port Arthur, was removed to her father's home a day or two ago from a local hospital, where she underwent an operation recently, and her husband came up from Port Arthur to spend Sunday with her, remaining at the Ward home over night.

Funeral services for Jiroe will be conducted here this afternoon, but funeral arrangements for Ward were not completed at a late hour today. The services will probably be held Thursday, relatives said.

DODSON'S SHOWS TO WINTER HERE

Probably 60 of Personnel To Remain Until Spring

Dodson's World Fair shows will winter in Port Arthur, C. G. Dodson said today. Dodson said he would call on Mayor Logan this afternoon and formally accept the proposition made by the city Saturday morning for the use of the pier.

Approximately a dozen employees will remain on duty until Christmas. Dodson said, although 40 or 50 other employees are expected to remain in Port Arthur until the shows go on the circuit again next spring. Immediately after Christmas, 50 or 60 men will be put to work, Dodson said, to overhaul the equipment and build a new set of wagons.

Although the fair crowds were absent, the pier presented a busy appearance today. Show employees were busy storing equipment in the buildings, while a number of workers were busy tearing down booths and removing exhibits. With the tinsel of the fair gone the grounds looked rather forlorn, papers and scraps flying in all directions. On the edge of the pier a dozen or so men and women of the show were trying their luck at fishing in the lake.

The Dodson shows will remain on the pier until March 30. In the meantime the Dodsons have agreed with the city to keep a watchman on the pier, to keep an eye on city property as well as show belongings. The animals of the show, such as monkeys, will be kept out for exhibition on Sundays to pier visitors. For the use of the buildings on the pier, the city will be paid $200.

Scouts Praised For Fair Traffic Work

Boy Scouts were a big aid in handling traffic during the fair, says Edgar Brown, tender of the canal bridge. Brown believes that many accidents were prevented by the Scouts being on duty.

"One can hardly realize just what a thing of this sort means until they stand in place of one of these boys from an hour and a half to two hours and see what they had to contend with. By having them doing this active duty at the bridge I believe many an accident was prevented and a quicker service provided those going out and in from the Fair Grounds as much as could be hoped for."

Two Extremes in Doing the Unusual

Here's one "hello girl" that they don't talk back to. She is Mrs. Louis Dyer, 76, the nation's oldest telephone girl and she's an operator at Ashfield, Mass. The switchboard is her home and there are 200 subscribers. She alternates d. t. y. with her granddaughter and night and day service is given.

Little Eileen—they don't know her last name—is upsetting the established order of things in St. Ann's Maternity Hospital in Cleveland. She's just a year old, but she keeps the sisters and nurses distracted all the time. She insists upon standing on her head. And she has the other babies in the ward trying to do it, too. But none of them are so successful at it as she.

One of the babies died Sunday, but the other two will live. The family is destitute.

Hall, a world war veteran slightly past 21, was sentenced to a long term in the penitentiary last May in connection with the killing of Winfield Knox, a member of a "tick-tacking" party December 31, 1922. Hall went to the penitentiary without guard and was on his way home today alone.

Release of the prisoner for a visit with his family was granted by acting Governor T. W. Davidson after a telephone conversation with Mayor J. F. McCullough here Sunday.

STRIKES PANIC IN DOZEN CITIES

Houses Shaken, Thousands Flee Homes

FEAR REPETITION

South Carolina Counties Feel Tremors

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 20.—The Piedmont district of South Carolina was severely shaken today by an earthquake. The tremors were felt in more than a dozen towns and cities in Spartanburg, Greenville and other counties.

Thousands Frightened Thousands were aroused by the disturbances which occurred shortly after 3:30 a. m. and continued several minutes. Window panes rattled and pictures dropped from the walls.

The center of the quake was reported between Greenville and Pickens, where the disturbances were most violent and strange rumbling sounds were heard.

Residents at Pickens thought a terrific explosion had occurred and ran from their homes terrified. Towns which reported disturbances included Anderson, Greer, Easley, Liberty and Union.

Felt in 100 Mile Radius The quake was general within a radius of 100 miles of Spartanburg. The rumblings which awoke Spartanburg caused a general stampede to the streets.

Hundreds of citizens, gathered in groups on downtown streets, today described the disturbances. Many admitted they became frantic when the first shocks were followed by additional tremors and rumblings. Houses rocked as if struck by terrific winds, window panes and crockery rattled ominously, they said.

Many husbands said they were first aroused by their wives and picked up their guns suspecting burglars were operating about the house. Old-timers Predict Repetition Pickens, where the shocks were most violent, was a terror stricken village during the early morning hours, according to reports received here. Many dwellings were rocked back and forth as the rumbling noises increased, following an initial terrific blast which aroused the entire village. The quake lasted two minutes.

Local citizens were extremely nervous and on edge. Amateur seismologists have spread a feeling of near panic by predicting that another quake will come within the next 24 hours. Old-timers, many who recall the disastrous earthquake in Charleston in 1886, stand about the streets and predict that the earth will be split in great seams and houses hurled about before the disturbances are over.

FIVE NEGROES TAKEN IN CRAP GAME RAID

'Egad, Warner, I'll be Director'

MRS. HOOPLE'S boarders are planning a benefit performance. It's pretty much of a secret just yet, but Major Hoople, who has volunteered to direct it, confided it to his crony, Wild-Cat Warner, while the two were looking at the moon through a glass at the Astronomy Club last night.

The side-breaking, laugh-making comic strip, "Our Boarding House," is laughed over in 8,000 Port Arthur homes every day. It ranks with the best in the world. So watch for this additional humor tickler when the benefit performance plans get going.

The event has provided material for a series of drawings by Gene Ahern which are the funniest he has ever produced. Watch for them in The News.

SHIPS BOTTLED IN AT TAMPICO

Shoaling, Low Tide, Com- bines to Prevent Passages

Low tides and shoaling caused by silt washed down the Pampuco river, flooded by inland rains, has blocked the port of Tampico, Mexico, making it impossible for heavier draft tankers to get in or out, according to dispatches received in Port Arthur today.

A tanker loaded with Mexican crude oil destined for the Gulf Refining company's Port Arthur terminals is among the ships held up by the low water over the Tampico bar, shipping men here said today. Last week a number of loaded tankers had to put back into Tampico to discharge part of their cargoes because of the shoals piled up on the bar by the silt washing down the Pampuco, but now an unusually low tide has added to the trouble and closed the oil port to all heavy draft ships, dispatches received here today set forth.

Membership Meeting At Christian Church

A membership meeting of all the members of the First Christian church has been called for Wednesday evening at the church for the purpose of making preparatory arrangements for the revival, which starts on Sunday, November 2. On this occasion Rev. R. R. Yelderman, pastor, will appoint committees to carry forward preliminary work of the revival. He urges a full attendance of the church membership.

DEMO RALLY AT GARDEN AIRDOME

A. F. Babin, Chairman, An- nounces Speakers

With a program of addresses by Beaumont and Port Arthur attorneys, many of whom spoke at a rally meeting in the court house, Beaumont, last week when a Jefferson County Democratic club was organized, a similar rally and mass meeting will be held in the Garden Airdome, Eighth street and Waco avenue, on Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock, A. F. Babin, chairman of the arrangements committee, said today.

Invitation of the speakers at the 8 o'clock meeting to attend the gathering in Port Arthur Wednesday night was extended by J. E. Rose, Port Arthur attorney, and those who have accepted include Clifford Stone, Steve King, I. W. Lawhorn, W. H. Davidson, Thomas N. Hill and S. B. Cooper, according to word from Babin. It is likely that other addresses will be given, and a general invitation is extended to the public to attend, the arrangements chairman said.

Meet Thursday For Gym Class Club

Because of pay day today, the initial meeting of a number of Port Arthur business men planning for an organization to take gymnastic work in the high school gymnasium is postponed from tonight until Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock, Julius Deuster, originator of the project, said today.

A number of men who desire to give one night each week to athletic training have signed up for the series of work-outs to be given through the winter, and others will be asked to get in on the training, Deuster said. Captain D. W. Eddy, Scout executive, will have charge of the class in both gymnasium and swimming pool work.

CANAL DRAWBRIDGE FORCE TO BE CUT

The force at the canal drawbridge probably will be reduced by one or two men in the next few days, City Engineer J. O. Herpin says. The bridge will be operated during the afternoon until 10 o'clock at night except when dances and other special occasions are given on the pier.

Regular dances will continue on the pier until Halloween night, after which dances will be given at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

THOMAS MEIGHAN STARS
Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture, "The Confidence Man," which was shown for the first time at the Strand theatre yesterday, is a crook romance with a brand new angle and bristling with punches—and not unlike "The Miracle Man." In the story, the strongest Meighan has had in months, the star has the role of Dan Corvan, the greatest of crook types of crook rather than the plausibly kind. Corvan hooks an old sucker, Queritt, falls in love with a young country girl, (Virginia Valli) pays phantoms to get "in sight" with the town-folk, collects from Queritt and prepares to skip town.

But the real action starts when Corvan is exposed for the crook he is. Lawrence Wheat and Charles Bow Clark have prominent supporting roles in the cast. Others include Helen Lindroth, Jimmy Lapsley, Margaret Seddon, David Higgins.

"THREE WOMEN"
Sweethearts, wives and mothers! There is a picture at the Cameo theatre that should interest you. It is something exceptionally good, entirely different. Don't fail to see "Three Women."

The story is of a middle aged widow who falls in love with a man about town, infatuated with her wealth. Soon he decides that her daughter would be a better match for him, and the mother loses a lover and gains a son. A charming wife does not change his habits for it is not long before he is in the midst of an affair with another woman. Then the complications begin and are brought to a very satisfactory conclusion. Ernst Lubitsch directed this picture. The cast, headed by May McAvoy, Marie Prevost and Pauline Frederick includes Lew Cody, Mary Carr, Pierre Gendron and Willard Louis.

Pirates Clean Up Houston Team in Opener, 19-0

PEN SANDEFUR LEADING STAR WITH DUPREE

Pirates to Be Recognized by Their Scratches

YOU'LL see them around on the streets today. You'll recognize them easily. If you see a fellow coming along, limping a little, perhaps, with scratches over his face, and generally looking as though he had 18 rounds or so with the neighborhood tom cat, just put it down in your notebook that he played with the Port Arthur Pirates yesterday. Ten to one you'll be eminently correct.

The boys organized the old Pirates again because they liked to play football, and they played that Houston team yesterday because they liked to play football. The Pirates will continue to play, and every indication is that Port Arthur will furnish her loyal support.

Con American Opponent
Well, that's enough apologetics before getting down to business. The Pirates opened their season yesterday against what was supposed to be the Con American team of Houston, and won in easy fashion, 19 to 0. It wasn't the Con American team but the First Ward Cubs of Houston, the scheduled team being unable to appear. However, it was a good game, and all that could be expected as an opening game.

For the Pirates, it was Pen Sandefur over and over again, ripping off the long gains that meant victory. It was Pen crashing off the yards, his little little body slipping through just as in the olden days for Southwestern university. This morning Pen was bearing all the scratch-marks that the other Pirates had. "Hub, had to stay in a tub of hot water about an hour last night," Pen said. "Good game, though."

The Pirates should have had another touchdown, but the timekeeper didn't see it that way. With the ball on the five-yard line the timekeeper's whistle put a stop to the game. The locals had fumbled, and instantly Sandefur reeled off a 25-yard return. But it was too late, for the next instant the game was over.

Dupree Scores Twice
The Houston Cubs really were no serious competition for the Pirates, and had the Port Arthur team been in better condition, with a few games played, the score would have been twice as strong, perhaps. When the second half opened, Captain "Germany" Plettman of the Pirates took himself as well as several others out of the game and through the third period the Pirates went scoreless. In the last period the first string Pirates went back again. Sandefur's 40-yard run put the ball in position for a touchdown, and Dupree carried it across for the final touchdown.

The first touchdown was made early in the first period by Dupree, while in the next period the second touchdown was made by Sandefur. The score came on an intercepted pass. The game was full of its sideplays. For instance, one of the Houston linemen didn't know he was playing against Spot Hanna, star guard on the Texas A. & M. team last year. "Boy, don't you know who I am," chirped Hanna's opponent. "No, and I don't care."

Well, I'm Bo McMillan," volunteered the persistent boy. On the next play Hanna mashed him, or put him out of the game, to use a more polite expression.

The lineup:

Houston	Position	Port Arthur
Putnam	L. E.	Stewart
Muhle	L. T.	A. Plettman
Williamson	L. G.	Penitt
Finn	R. G.	Spencer
Gennusa	R. T.	Hanna

Barbed Wire Path Ahead For S.M.U. In Texas Aggies

Championship Talk Foolish as Other Teams Hold Up; Bears at Waco Still Look Like Formidable Foe

Well, they tore loose things in the conference Saturday. After so many weeks by at least one of the conference teams, the grand smash came Saturday. For one time the dope ran true to form. The dope was on S. M. U. against Texas Saturday in the biggest game of the season so far, and likely to be one of the most important games of the entire season. S. M. U. won 10 to 6, as might have been expected, had the dope been followed. We predicted a 10-7 victory for Texas, knowing S. M. U. to be a better team and knowing that the Longhorns were figured, but at the same time placing our confidence in Doc Stearns' ability to put one over the boys as he did against Vanderbilt last year.

Texas played back during the first half, contenting itself with a defensive game, and in the third period to a 6 to 3 lead for a few minutes. But that dreaded S. M. U. air game was not to be denied, and a 30-yard pass put the ball in position to be smashed across nine yards in four downs by the powerful Cortez. No game ever panned out according to the dope as did this game, and probably no other game ever will.

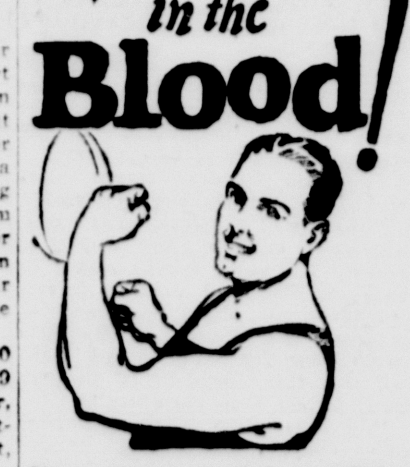

Port Arthur Boy Plays
"Swampy" Thorlef Thompson of Port Arthur won his chance to play at center against the Mustangs when Pfannkuche, regular center, injured his shoulder in last week's Howard Payne game. This was the first time S. M. U. ever had beaten Texas, and places the Mustangs ahead as popular favorites for the championship.

However, S. M. U. still has a long way to travel and is due for some upsets. The Texas team of last year could have defeated the Ponies with ease, and yet last year Texas could not win from Baylor. The Bears are very, very formidable this year, despite all talk to the contrary. Baylor is always a team that rises to the occasion, and should win either from S. M. U. or the Texas Aggies or perhaps both. The Bruins won from Arkansas 13 to 0 Saturday at Waco, Coach Bridges using his old tricks known to every conference team, and yet nearly always successful. A deceptive cross cross scored one touchdown and a short onside kickoff was responsible for another.

Both Baylor touchdowns were scored in the first half. Strickland's 30-yard run scoring within two minutes after the game opened, and a bad pass and blocked punt by Arkansas affording the opportunity for the cross cross in the second period. Thereafter Baylor settled down to playing straight football, making eight first downs to six for the Razorbacks in the game.

A. & M. will be turning every possible effort this week toward whipping S. M. U. at Dallas Saturday, for if the Methodists win again, they will be given very nearly a cinch on the championship. But A. & M. has a strong team this year, despite the loss of their captain, Louie Miller. The most encouraging feature of the Aggie outfit this year is the coming MAN'S GLORY is his strength—yet how few there are who are really as strong as they should be. The blood thins, gets weaker, blood cells wear out—general weakness and a gradual breakdown of the system results.

We know that as blood cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! But have you ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought of it. So-called skin eruptions—pimples, boils, blackheads, eczema all pack up and go when the tide of blood cells begins to roll in. Blood cells are the fighting giants of Nature. S. S. ABILENE AND WICHITA FALLS OUT OF SCRAP

Champions Lose to Cisco, Vernon Beats Coyotes

At last two of last year's string of leading interscholastic football teams have been shoved off out of the running already. All of which promises that there may be a good many newcomers competing for the football title this year.

For certain, there will be a new championship team, for Cisco defeated Abilene Friday 6 to 3 at Abilene. It was a tough game all the way, Abilene scoring first with a field goal and the Cisco Lobos coming from behind to score a touchdown.

It was the first time in the history of the interscholastic league that Abilene failed to win its district title. Chigger Browne, only high school player to cross Abilene's goal line last year, repeated Friday and scored the touchdown that won.

Star Baldwin Missed
Another game out in west Texas of considerable interest was Vernon's 20 to 0 defeat of Wichita Falls. Coach Bud McCallum is this year missing the invaluable services of Leo Baldwin, perhaps the greatest all-around high school athlete Texas has ever known.

Baldwin is on the University of Texas freshman team this year. Of interest also is Big Spring's defeat of Colorado, 37 to 7. Big Spring far beyond Abilene on the T. & P. line, is coached by Casey Joe Ward, all-southwestern tackle last year.

Down in central Texas the ever-dominant Waco Tigers, coached by the resourceful Tyson, defeated their old mortal enemies, Bryan high, 29 to 7. Marlin defeated Mexia 41 to 0. Cleburne showed considerable strength Saturday in trimming Itasca 29 to 0.

Central High of Houston did not play Eagle Lake, as was first announced, but defeated Livingston 23 to 0 Friday in an easy game. Port Arthur plays Central at Houston November 1.

Princeton Prepares

For Notre Dame Game

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 20.—With "Buzz" Stout and Bud McMillan back in the line after a two weeks' rest, the Tigers will start a week of hard drilling for the Notre Dame game Saturday. The squad came through the Navy game in good shape.

Ballieu of Beaumont

Not Protested Here, High School Claims

"We will play Beaumont here with Ballieu and everybody else on their team," Coach Lee Smith of the Yellowjackets said this morning in asserting that Port Arthur had made no protest against the eligibility of Ballieu.

Beaumont reports this morning were that a "neighboring team" had challenged Sam Ballieu as ineligible, although the name of the team was not mentioned. The Beaumont report said the eligibility of Ballieu was supported in a letter received by the high school from Roy B. Henderson, athletic director of the University of Texas.

AGGIES WIN ON INTERFERENCE

Maulbetsch Rates Rola Team Over T. C. U.

By JOHN F. MAULBETSCH, Coach of Oklahoma A. and M. College.

(Written for the United Press) STILLWATER, Okla., Oct. 20.—Interference running by the Oklahoma Aggies last Saturday was an underlying reason for their 23 to 0 victory over the Missouri School of Mines eleven at Stillwater.

It was the greatest show of interference an A. and M. team has made in the four years of my coaching here. Despite the fact that the Aggies lost week before last to Texas Christian University and whipped the Rola Miners Saturday, the Missouri team is stronger in my opinion than the Texas outfit.

The Aggies did not fight harder against the Miners than they did against the Frogs but their action was more uniform and deliberate. They had teamwork. Again it was the matter of psychology.

'IRISH' WHOOP 'EM UP

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 20.—That football interest is not lagging at Notre Dame was demonstrated when the "Fighting Irish" returned from their victory over the Army Saturday. One of the biggest demonstrations in the history of the school was staged.

FIGHTERS AT LEAST

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 20.—The 7-4 tie score with Minnesota, Saturday, although it was a great disappointment to the Badgers, convinced coach Jack Ryan that he had a fighting regiment.

EPINARD WILL RETURN HOME IN FORTNIGHT

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 20.—Eugene Leigh, Epinard's trainer, announced the French colt would be shipped this week to sail for France within a fortnight. Epinard came out of Saturday's race, in which he finished fifth, with a cracked quarter and Leigh says he cannot go to the post again this year.

INDIANAPOLIS RACERS WIN ON DIRT TRACK

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Three Indianapolis drivers—Ralph Grimsby, Clarence Kingsley, and Wilber Shaw—finished first, second and third, respectively, in the national 100 mile dirt track championship auto race at the Roby track yesterday. Grimsby's time was 1:28:05.15.

Caddie will not be needed if a new golf club with an adjustable head comes into general use.

COFFEYVILLE CLOSES To Honor Johnson

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Oct. 20.—All stores were closed and business at a standstill today while Coffeyville honored her most distinguished citizen, Walter Johnson. A parade, a ball game and a banquet were to make up the program with Johnson featured in all three. "Gabby" Street, old battery mate of Johnson's, will once again receive Barney's fast ones in the ball game.

GRANGE BESTS GIPP, HARLEY

Western Football Outclasses Anything in East

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—After an impressive and most convincing victory over Michigan, the Illinois university eleven now ranks as the favorite to win the western conference championship. Illinois, Chicago and Ohio State have not been defeated and are tied for the lead.

But Chicago and Ohio State have no Red Grange. Beyond all doubt, Grange is the greatest football player that has come up in the last ten years at least.

George Gipp, the late Notre Dame star, was the last wizard to flash across the gridiron. Gipp could kick better than Grange but he could do nothing else better. Chick Harley, who made Ohio State history, several years ago, was one of the greatest of all runners, but he couldn't get around them and shake them off like Grange does and Harley couldn't throw a ball like Grange.

As far as football is concerned, the brand of game shown by Michigan and Illinois was much faster and more interesting than any football seen in the east in the last six years.

Smith and Davis Must Know By Tomorrow

Whether or not the Yellowjackets and their supporters, in high school, in town and from anywhere, go to Galveston Saturday on a special train will be known tomorrow.

A number notified Principal Davis and Coach Smith at the high school this morning that they would make the trip on the train, but the special equipment is not yet assured. Tomorrow will be the last day to make reservations. The train leaves Beaumont at 10:15 Saturday morning, and will return from Galveston soon after the game.

If we have 200 or 300 rooters with us Saturday we have a much better chance of winning from Galveston," said Coach Smith. "And the stronger we go into the Houston game the better."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

—HE THAT PASSETH BY, AND MEDDLETH WITH STRIFE BELONGING NOT TO HIM, IS LIKE ONE THAT TAKETH A DOG BY THE EARS.—PROVERBS 26:17.

The Editorial Mind

Dr. Frank Crane's Editorials

ON EXPRESSING ONE'S PERSONALITY

Said a society woman the other day: "I was handicapped at the start by having neither wealth nor beauty, so I endeavored to express my personality in my surroundings and in my dress."

"I adopted a certain color and kept to it, making it my own, as you will doubtless have noticed. My hats, my gowns, and every detail of my toilette to the smallest accessories, was carried out in a restful, peace-giving shade of pastel grey. I have identified my whole personality with it. The pastel shades of my drawing room give the air of almost cloistered peace. Now I am known as the lady of repose."

This lady confessed to Lady Diana Manners, who adds that while most women are content to go with the crowd and follow where others lead, it is best to be individual.

Be in the fashion, yes, she says, if you are not you will be old-fashioned and dowdy, but fashion must be adapted to suit yourself.

She adds that she is a firm believer in individuality in clothes and that in many cases she makes her own gown. She thinks that every woman should try to design at least one dress for herself.

"Since I was a child I have made nearly all my own dresses, from the designing, cutting out and fitting, to the actual stitching. I even made my own wedding gown and I do not think many women can boast of having done this. I did this because I wanted my personality to rise above mere fashion."

One's personality does not depend upon beauty of face or shapeliness of form; it depends upon one's self.

Recently an actress in London advertised herself as the plainest woman in the world and the worst singer. She achieved a success, however, because she was entirely herself, had a distinct personality and expressed it.

It will be found that the women who have most influence in the world have not been those gifted with beauty of face and form but those who have been enabled to express themselves in dress and otherwise.

To be sure there is such a thing as carrying individuality too far, and of expression to the point of exaggeration, but there is also such a thing as carrying conformity too far. Just what is the golden mean, every woman must find out for herself. (Copyright, 1924, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

In New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Prof. Lionel C. Reno is in town. Prof. Reno stands on street corners and tells people how to improve their memories.

For instance, you would like to memorize the radio call letters of the bigger stations throughout the country. Study the professor's method.

"Use association," says Professor Reno, "and make a phrase of some association, and use as many words as you have letters."

Thus you would remember KFSG of Los Angeles by thinking, "Kissing Fifty-Seven Girls."

And for WEA of New York you'd say to yourself, "Where Every American Fights."

In Butte, Mont., there is station KFAF. Naturally you'll always associate with Butte, "Keeping Free and Pretty."

Of course, you may have kissed 57 girls in Los Angeles, and kept free and pretty in Butte, but—did you ever see an American fight in New York?

An American fighting in New York would find himself greatly outnumbered by the foe.

Of all the varied publications that pour in upon a surfeited reader, not the least interesting of the group is "The Spaghetti News," an infant in the journalistic wilderness of Gotham.

Mr. Giuglietti, the esteemed editor, gives in the current number the proper directions for eating spaghetti.

It is he, "it is no longer a difficult task to eat spaghetti properly, for the only thing about it is to turn a portion of spaghetti around the fork and then merely bend the head and swallow the delicious morsel."

"First: The mouth must be wide open."

"Second: It must be eaten while the spaghetti is hot."

With the ritual thus simplified your correspondent will strive once more to eat the delicious morsel in the approved manner. Heretofore he has had considerable difficulty in winding up the spaghetti even when backstopping the fork with the spoon and in keeping his mouth wide open until a forkful has been pitched in and trampled down under the eaves.

Cap Higgins, the artist, drove in from Jersey and stabled his car in an uptown garage that overlooks the Hudson and the Jersey shore. The man who took charge of the car was about 50 and has lived in New York all his life.

Higgins made some casual remark about his ride through Jersey.

GARY AND JOHN SULLIVAN: TWO SIDES OF UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

Judge Elbert H. Gary of the steel trust, a life long republican, is backing Coolidge and Dawes. He says prosperity will win the election for the republicans. This billion dollar steel king finds prosperity everywhere in America and conditions most promising in Europe.

Gary is a New Yorker. John Sullivan is a New Yorker. He is director of the New York city bureau of city aid. John, who does not belong to the steel trust says that with 300,000 men and women out of employment in New York at the present time the city is facing a serious economic situation.

Not since the fall of 1921, which preceded an unusually hard winter, have there been so many unemployed, according to Director Sullivan and what makes the situation even more significant is the fact that about sixty per cent of the unemployed are members of labor unions.

According to the Russell Sage Foundation bulletins from ten to twelve per cent of all the workers in the United States are continuously out of employment when good and bad years are averaged. The bulletin does not disclose the actual number of idle workers at present but the number is described as several million men and women.

Investigators touched seventy cities and thirty-one states and Canada and the foreword says that each year from one million to six million persons are out of work for weeks and sometimes months at a time. This is the conclusion: "Widespread unemployment is now a constant phenomenon with far reaching economic, social, psychological bearings."

Judge Gary says prosperity is widespread. The Russell Sage Foundation should place the name of the Judge on their list and mail him their bulletins.

A WOMAN WITH A SOUL

A famous actress, Lotta Crabtree, died the other day in the city of Boston. She had accumulated large wealth by successful investment of her earnings as an actress in the days of her popularity as a public entertainer.

Now what did she do with her money? Did she will it to societies founded for the purpose of civilizing the natives in the jungles of Africa or on the wild islands of the seven seas? She did not.

Her will established a trust fund of two million dollars for those men and women in the service of the United States during the world war who were disabled, maimed, wounded or sick and extends assistance also to their dependents.

This former star of the American stage left hundreds of thousands for dumb animals, needy actors and actresses, hospitals and discharged convicts and the residue to graduates of the Massachusetts Agricultural college.

As she was most closely identified with the state of Massachusetts, California and New York, her will says, in speaking of the two million dollar trust fund, preference shall be given to veterans in these states but this request is not mandatory. She did not forget the public hospitals having set aside a large fund to be used in providing free beds and medical attendance say she had no right to will it where she did. Fat pickings for the sick poor in Boston.

Where there is a will there is always relations—greedy relations. Lotta made the money. Now some of the greedy ones for the baristers.

THIS IS WOMAN'S AGE

Mrs. Frank Tinney, wife of the famous comedian, has sued her husband for a divorce and asks for $750 weekly alimony and counsel fees of $5,000. According to the attorney for her husband her demands are ridiculous for the reason that she has the deed to Foxhurst, the $100,000 Tinney home on Long Island, she has possession of his savings of over $100,000 which he accumulated during the past fifteen years while he has his wardrobe and that is all.

Yes, this is woman's age and she is getting all that is coming to her. Husband Tinney thinks that she is getting more than is coming to her. Incidentally, the house of Winthrop of New England has endured a great shock. Papa Winthrop is a millionaire banker and the head of an ancient lineage. His two lovely daughters eloped last week, one taking the family chauffeur to be her husband and soul mate and the other the electrician on the family estate.

This double-barreled society event created a greater commotion than the election of a United States senator in Massachusetts and the "classes" and the "masses" are wondering if the country is hell-bent when two Winthrops take unto themselves as husbands two unknown without the pale of Back Bay and Berkshire society. Isn't it hades!

BACK RISK OF EVERY INVESTMENT

NO RISKS-NO PROFITS NO PROFITS-NO DIVIDENDS OR INTEREST

How can an investment which is absolutely free from risk be selected?

There is but one answer to such a question. There is no investment free from risk, never has been one, and unless the present economic system changes greatly, there never will be one. There are, of course, investments which have comparatively little risk—but there are none which have no risk.

Take the different classes of investments, for example. Start in with government bonds—they are generally regarded as the safest of all securities, but many times in the history of the world local, state and national governments have repudiated their debts.

The story of industrial, too, is well known. Every now and again a company which has seemed utterly safe goes on the rocks. The same thing is true of calls, though they do not cease operations—they merely fail to pay dividends over a long stretch of years.

Theoretically, if there were no risks there could be no profits and there would be no dividends, there could be no dividends and no interest. The whole thing works around in a circle. Risk has never been an absolute term—it is merely comparative.

The Affair at Flower Acres

© 1924 by NEA Service Inc. WELLS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Malcolm Finley, returning from Japan, is invited to Flower Acres, the Long Island home of Douglas Raynor, husband of Nancy, who is a former sweetheart of Finley's. Finley discovers that his fiancée is transmuting over Nancy and is incensed. Finley goes to Flower Acres with a friend, Ezra Goldard, and sees Nancy and Nancy's devoted brother, Orville Kent, and Raynor's maiden sister, Miss Mattie. When the family are having their coffee and smoking in the sun parlor of the house after dinner, Finley fights a strong temptation to seat himself near his hostess. He has noticed at dinner, however that his conversation with Nancy was entirely by listening to by Raynor and Miss Mattie. The sun parlor is an "ideal room" with three sides and a roof of glass.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Deeming it wise, therefore, he took a seat beside the maiden lady, a proceeding entirely to her satisfaction.

"You're one of Nancy's old beaux, aren't you?" she asked.

"Now, Miss Raynor," Finley said, "I object to that term old beau. It makes me feel like a somewhat decrepit but well-preserved man of sixty or so."

"Nonsense, you know I didn't mean anything like that. But weren't you one of her admirers?"

"Oh, yes—surely none but a blind man could plead not guilty to that charge! You're one yourself, aren't you? You admire her yourself don't you?"

"Yes—except that I think she's overly slim for a matron."

Finley gave a brief glance at the slender, lissome form of his hostess, but looked away quickly, lest his eyes linger too long.

She sat in a swing, amid a cluster of cushions. Her small, dark head leaned back with a slight abandon, and her wistful little face was upturned to Goldard, who stood above and behind her. One black slippered foot kept the swing swaying a trifle, and her outspread hands rested on the sides of the swing.

"Do stop that teetering, Nan," her husband said, pettishly.

"I will, Douglas," and the accompanying smile showed no trace of annoyance. She straightened the swing and sat motionless, crossing her hands on her lap. Her gown was of plain black velvet, a trailing garment of fine French flowers its only ornament. She wore no jewels, save a string of pearls, and her small, delicate face, though pale, was bright and animated.

"Why have you so few decorations tonight, my dear?" Raynor asked, looking her over critically. "In honor of our returned traveler, you should have donned your bravest war paint."

"Beauty unadorned," Nan said, smiling, but Finley saw her hands clasp tightly, as if there were a disturbing undercurrent of her husband's remarks.

"Not your beauty," Raynor said. "You're too pale, my dear, to claim that your face is your fortune."

"Then all we so when we're alone, Douglas. Personalities!"

"There she goes again! Always lecturing me on my manners! What would you do, Finley, if you had a wife that never stopped pestering you?"

"I'd let her pester," Malcolm said, and his cool voice gave a sign of the angel in his breast. This, then, was the way Raynor was a brute.

"Yes—one, emphatically. I've given up trying to mend her ways—but it is tiresome to be caught up continually."

"Oh, I don't, Douglas. Don't believe him, Malcolm, he's teasing me. And by the way, Douglas, how do you like the new rhododendron beds?"

"A fine question—considering you placed them exactly where I asked you not to. Why did you do that? To prove your independence of my wishes, or merely to be contrary?"

"But, Douglas, dear, they're just where you said you wanted them!"

"Nothing of the sort. You, miss understood entirely. You would, of course. Oh, well, I can't expect to have anything as I want it around this place. With you, you're a case of a case, and a case, a case, a case."

"I'll have them changed," Nan spoke dully, listlessly, as if she would rather change the whole garden plan than have any further discussion.

"Yes, and spend a fortnight more of the gardeners' time—no conception of the value of time—or of money. I should think your early days of forced economy would have taught you not to be quite so extravagant. Where you going, Orville?"

"Out, said Orville, shortly. "Star gazing," he added, with a smile at Finley. "Want to go?"

Finley went and Miss Raynor at once began to discuss his wife. "What a nice man he is," she said; "but not much of a talker. I couldn't draw him out at all."

"Nancy could—without half trying," said Nancy's husband. "I believe I'll get some fun out of that chap. I'm a great student of human nature, as you know, Goldard. I study it as Orville studies his beloved astronomy. I believe Venus has a conjunction tonight—"

Finley was giving a three-circled circus. Want to go out there with them, Nan?"

"No, thank you," and she tried to speak brightly.

"Devoted little wife—rather stay with her husband—that if! Don't trouble yourself to say yet, for I shouldn't believe you. Well, here comes Eva at last. Three minutes late, Miss Turner. What's my sin today?"

"Too many calories for your luncheon, Mr. Raynor. And instead of making up for it at dinner, you transgressed again."

"Did I? Well, it was that damned chocolate roll! I believe my wife orders it just to tempt me beyond endurance. She knows how fond of it I am. Did you, Nancy?"

"No, Douglas, you know I didn't!"

"Well, why did you order it, then? I noticed you scarcely touched it yourself."

"Yes, Nancy," chimed in Miss Mattie, "why did you have it? To please your guest?"

"Yes, to please Mr. Goldard," said Nan, bravely smiling.

"I don't wish to have anything on the table that my brother doesn't want there," the prim spinster declared.

They were rather alike, the brother and sister. Both were very thin, with thin gray hair and thin high voices. They looked as if they were thin blooded, and though a thin veneer of culture showed on the surface, one gained the impression that beneath were very primitive and unbridled impulses.

Two years ago, when he married the lovely Nancy Kent, all the world wondered. Wondered how he ever persuaded such a dainty bit of femininity to link her life with his. He had been a friend of her father's, who had died since the marriage, but among scores of suitors it was hard to understand Nan's decision.

Miss Mattie, though, saw no cause for surprise. To her, her brother Douglas was the epitome of all that was worthwhile or desirable. And her query was what had Douglas seen in that pale-faced, big-eyed chit to make him want her. Curiosity being the lady's strong point, she set about to find out. Her quest was unsuccessful, but she did succeed in adding no negligible weight to the burden of discomfort the mistress of Flower Acres carried.

The next morning most of the household arose with a fixed and positive determination on at least one point.

Nancy Raynor vowed to herself that not one word or glance of a personal or overly friendly nature would she vouchsafe to Malcolm Finley. For she divined her husband was on the lookout for such and would rate and distort their meaning to the discomfort of all concerned.

Ezra Goldard vowed to himself that he would drop another hint, a strong one, to Finley on the advisability of keeping away from his hostess.

Miss Mattie vowed to herself she would find out the true state of affairs between Nan and Mr. Finley, and if she could find the least thing to report she would hasten to her brother with the matter.

Orville Kent concluded that Nan was doing wrong, and he must consider carefully whether to speak of her on the subject or not.

Eva Turner promised herself to be more careful in the matter of her employer's diet.

And Malcolm Finley, solely and roundly swore to himself that he would stop, look and listen a little further, and then if he was satisfied that that old curmudgeon was really mistreating that darling girl, he, Finley, would settle the said curmudgeon's hash—in one way or another! Finley was a man of no words, and of the family until luncheon time, unless by chance. And, as long as Nan sat among the gardens, he concluded to make his own chance.

Modern Hope Chest Filled More Rapidly Than Those Of Grandmother's Days

With announcements of engagements and rumors of weddings filling the air these days, hope chests are beginning to be considered as useful things after all by the charming bride-to-be. Today's hope chest is filled more quickly. But this is a rapid age and the fullness of the chest depends upon the lining of the pocketbooks of those who fill its depth.

The old "dozen" of everything has gone out of fashion. The modern girl is putting away sets, runners, tray cloths, tea-table linens, porch linens, and modern things in use today. But few dainty table linens add weight to the chest. Personal trousseaus are not considered part of the chest's filling.

In some of the bridal lines the modern craze for color has crept in and the fine sheets have embroidered monograms done in colors with wash silks in fine satin stitch. Towels and other linens are done to match. Six sheets are made with hemstitched hem simply stitched with color, and six are for upper sheets, showing elaborately embroidered hems. These will remain colorful and dressy as long as the work is unfaded. The more conservative are having sheets made up in pure white, which is likely to remain at its best a long time.

There are long runners, cross-runners, four-armed cloths and center cloths made to take the place of the old tablecloths. The long runners are embroidered in colors and patterns to harmonize with period furniture and hangings where they are used. The long runners and cross-runners are a foreign idea. As many cross-runners are used as there are extra guests expected. They are slipped under the long runner and so form a resting place for a plate service at either side of the table.

The four-arm cloth has some disadvantages. The main one is the difficult task of proper laundering. If made of any soft material it may stretch in the corners, so that it will not lie flat on the table and it is a hard matter to fold it so that it will not show creases. These cloths are usually embroidered around the entire hem, which is narrow, but in some cases they are hemstitched with a color thread running through them. Sometimes dainty French blanket covers are added to the collection in the modern girl's hope chest.

In an age when girls are supposed to think mostly of beaux and clothes, and when the clever use of the rouge box and lip stick are said to be their chief accomplishments, it is a pleasure to find in a smart downtown shop an apron trousseau, especially designed for brides.

It may be that after a few years of utter disregard for housewifery attainments brides are again going in for the old fashioned homemaking, and the dainty little apron is the pretty sign thereof.

A charming young matron needs looks so bewitching as when she wears a frivolous little apron to complete her costume. The apron trousseau may be depleted by the woman clever with her needle.

Sunday Supper apron is made of soft gray taffeta, with pleating and true lovers' knot on the pocket of changeable rose and orchid ribbon. Monday Mending is a cunning little thing of flame organdie, the hem turned up to hold strands of mending cotton, spools of thread, tiny scissors and thimble.

Tuesday Tidbit is of red rubber.

Explorer Says Alaska Hides Rich Coal Bed

SEATTLE, Oct. 20.—Discovery of vast deposits of coal in the unexplored wastes of Alaska, far within the Arctic circle, was reported by Dr. Philip S. Smith of the United States geological survey, who returned here Monday with a party of seven, after an extensive exploration.

"The foothills and great valleys just north of the Endicott range which forms the divide between the Yukon river and the Arctic ocean contain some of the greatest deposits of coal on the continent," said Dr. Smith. "It is further proof that Alaska, in past ages, had a temperate, if not a sub-tropical climate. At present there is no vegetation in that region suitable for forming coal."

Mother was sleeping quietly after her long night vigil when Alice arrived. Both John and I went to the room to meet her and Karl. She seemed very much put out about something, and her only observation was: "Hate all the arrangements been made?"

Poor Karl looked worn out. However, he made no complaint. When she arrived at the house, in spite of everything either Karl or I could say, she went directly to her mother's room and throwing herself down beside the bed, began to reproach us all for not bringing her home in time to see her father once again.

Of course, this awakened mother, who opened her eyes to hear: "If my dear dad had been really himself, he would have sent for me in time. You, every one of you, had a chance to bid him goodbye, but you forgot me!" she wailed.

"It was nothing to you, Leslie. That I was not here to share your selfish grief—and you let him die with his eyes resting only on you, I, too, am the daughter of my father, and I will never forgive you for this, never."

"Hush, hush, daughter!" remonstrated mother before she was fairly awake. "None of us knew the end was so near. Of course, we have known your father has been seriously ill for a long time, but until yesterday morning I tried to make myself believe he was going to get well. His serious illness, Alice, did not keep you from running away from him and marrying Karl. You yourself forgot him. I suppose he did not ask us to send for you because he wanted you and Karl to enjoy the first little while of your marriage without being called to visit this house of grief and sorrow."

"But what if he didn't send for me? You sent for Leslie and Jack!" wailed Alice.

"Leslie came, my dear, before you ran away to be married, and John came at your father's request, many times to him by letter and telegram in the last few weeks."

"Did he not ask you to send for Karl and me, as well? Why should he send for John alone? What did my father want of one of his sons-in-law that he did not want of the other?" Alice demanded.

"He wanted me to take charge of the plant and execute his will," came bluntly from John, who was standing behind Karl and Alice.

"Oh, I know you influenced him, John. Prescott!" hysterically cried Alice, wheeling around. "Why should he not want Karl as much as you, and me as much as Leslie?"

"Simply because Karl has never been tied down to business in his life, and he knew you were a marplot. Your father knew well that the person who would take over his affairs would probably have to work and work damned hard all the rest of his life. Your father, Alice, told me this specifically," said John.

Butte's Statements Denounced by 'Ma'

TEMPLE, Texas, Oct. 20.—Campaign statements of Dr. George C. Butte, republican nominee for governor, were denounced by Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, democratic gubernatorial nominee, in a statement issued here tonight, directed to the "people of Texas."

In the first declaration since she was declared eligible to hold office by the state supreme court, Mrs. Ferguson vehemently denied that she was unfavorable to prohibition and declared in favor of the Dean law and the Volstead act.

"Alice grew very pale, but Karl, God bless him, came forward and took John's hand in his."

"Father Hamilton was right Alice. John, you are the one to take charge of his business."

"We'll get the invisible cloak fixed and give it to the sand man," said Nancy.

"I am so very late getting around to all the babies," said the Sand Man, "that if you don't help me, Twins, it will be morning before I get through."

"Why, of course we'll help you, Mister Sand Man," said Nancy. "We still have our magic shoes and we can slip in at doors and windows like wee Willie Winkie."

As she spoke she saw a cloak lying on the ground and picked it up, instantly she faded from view. No one could see her any more than I can see China at this minute.

"Nancy, where are you?" cried Nick.

"I'm right here," said Nancy's voice. "What's wrong?"

"I don't know, but I can't see you," said Nick. "I haven't seen you since you picked that cloak up."

"Neither have I," said the Sand Man. "I know what it is. It's the invisible cloak that Tweedledee dropped from the moon!"

"Oh, oh!" cried Nancy. "It's the very thing for tonight, Nick! Each of us will take a piece and when we go to drop the sand into the babies' eyes, they can't see us."

"If you don't mind, I'll have a piece myself," said the Sand Man. "I'm pretty smart about not being seen, but when my hay-fever comes on and I have to sneeze, I have a dreadful time not being discovered."

"Of course," said Nancy.

So she divided the cloak into three pieces, she and Nick each taking a piece with a pocket.

Then the Sand Man filled the pockets with magic sleep sand out of his sack and everything was ready.

The moon was just over the top of the meeting-house steeple when the three workers started off over the house tops to put the babies to sleep.

By the time the moon was over the weather-cock on the barn, the whole world was quiet.

"Achoo!" went the Sand Man. "I do believe my hay-fever is coming back."

"Where are you?" cried Nancy. "I can't see anybody."

"Where are you, yourself?" the Sand Man wanted to know.

"Where are both of you?" came Nick's voice. "I'm here, too."

"Why, we still have on the pieces of the invisible cloak!" laughed Nancy. "We must take them off."

So they did and there they were, all three of them!

"We'll get the invisible cloak fixed and give it to the Sand Man," said Nancy. "It will keep him from catching cold, too."

"Fine," cried Nick. "We'll go to the Green Wizard at once."

So they went to the tree where the Green Wizard lived and woke him up out of a sound sleep.

"Certainly, I'll fix it," said the kind old fellow. "Anything to oblige a friend."

So he said:

"One-ery, two-ery, three-ery, four, invisible cloak, be whole once more."

Instantly the cloak was mended.

"Thank you," said the Sand Man, putting it on. "Good night, Twins, and thank you for helping me. I must get to my home at the end of the earth and sleep till tomorrow night. I'm very tired."

So now you know, my dears, what troubles the Sand Man has, and why he is invisible, and everything.

But mind you, when the Twins woke up next morning, they thought they had been dreaming.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

A FIGHT IN A MEXICAN HARBOR

While Elizabeth was queen, there arose a group of English sea captains who were little better than pirates. Chief of these were John Hawkins and Francis Drake. Hawkins was the older of the two men. He was admiral of a fleet of six ships which had a serious adventure. Drake was captain of one ship. The fleet first sailed along the coast of Africa. Four hundred negroes were seized, to be sold as slaves.

By that time, the Spaniards in America had learned that the Indians usually either fought to gain freedom or died under the strain of steady work. It was different with the negroes. They did not have enough spirit to fight for freedom. They were able to work day in and day out, without losing hold on life.

So it was that the Spaniards liked to get black slaves. When Hawkins brought negroes to the West Indies, he was able to sell 300 of them at good prices. There were still 100 left, and Hawkins thought he would try to sell them in Mexico.

The English fleet anchored in a harbor on the Mexican coast. Soon a large Spanish fleet came along and wanted to enter the harbor because there was a heavy storm raging in the gulf. The English might have kept them out, for the harbor entrance was very narrow.

"What shall I do?" wondered Hawkins. "There are 13 Spanish ships. If we let them in, they may sink our small fleet. On the other hand, if we keep them out they will all be sunk by the storm."

After hesitating awhile, he let the other fleet into the harbor. If we can believe Hawkins' story, the Spanish soon opened fire on the English. The latter fired back and there was a hot battle. Two Spanish ships were sunk, and one was set afire. The English lost four ships, and the other two fled from the harbor.

One of the ships which got away was Hawkins; on the other was Drake. Neither man ever forgave the Spaniards for this deed. They used it as an excuse to fight Spanish ships whenever they saw a chance.

Drake was only 23 when he took part in the harbor fight. He had already proved himself an able captain and it was dangerous for the Spaniards to have him trying to get revenge.

UNEQUAL TAX BURDEN BIG ISSUE IN TEXAS

AUSTIN, Oct. 20.—Prominent among outstanding problems in Texas is the one of inequalities in the distribution of the tax burden, state tax Commissioner John Wallace declared in his biennial report filed Saturday with the governor. As a matter of common knowledge, he said, a no inconsiderable part of the taxable wealth of Texas is and has been escaping taxation entirely. Another considerable part is being assessed but negligible percentages of true value, which he thinks is valid cause for complaint upon the part of some tax payers. "In truth," the tax commissioner said, "our taxing system is in need of thorough overhauling."

EDUCATION IS SERMON THEME

Yelderman Quotes Scripture In Second of Series

Defining education, telling of its value and giving four reasons for securing an education, Rev. R. R. Yelderman addressed a large audience last night at the First Christian church on the subject, "The Value of an Education."

Taking as his text II Timothy 2:15, "Study to show thyself approved a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth," Rev. Yelderman declared that a great many persons thought this passage only referred to the Bible. "But a person who is educated must have read and studied the Bible," the speaker declared. "Study! Study the Bible; study humanity; study in school; study in your place of business and if you have a thinking mind you will have new truths."

"Have you ever tried to define education? What is an education? It is not merely ability to read and write. It is not merely going through schools and universities and living in books all your life. I once saw a cartoon picture of what our great grandfathers thought education was. It was a boy sitting in a schoolhouse with a professor pouring 'facts' through a great funnel into his head. Amassing of facts isn't education."

"But then, what is education? It's that process of intellectual and moral training and development that completes one for living."

"The days are gone when a person can make a success without an education. Of course there are instances of successful men who made their fortunes in pioneer days—but that day has ended when a boy growing into manhood can amass a fortune and become a leader when he can't read and write. In the United States in 1922 out of 5,000,000 men and women who had no schooling only 31 distinguished themselves. In 1924 the boy or girl who has had no schooling has only one chance out of 150,000 to succeed; with a grade schooling he has one chance out of 37,500; with a high school education he has one chance out of 1,724; and with a higher education and technical training he has one chance out of 187 to succeed. Give your boy and girl a good education; see that he goes to school and then gets good technical and professional training!

Why secure an education? There are four reasons: First, a selfish one and that is for the purpose of making a living. That's selfish but the only way to get away from selfishness is to take the soul out of the body. The second reason is because with education there is developed that elusive and indescribable thing called personality. The third reason is because it helps to add to your refinement and culture; and fourth because thereby you can render a greater service to your fellow man. The man who is really educated will be educated in mind, heart and soul. He will be a servant of all."

Proceeding last night's sermon Miss Gladys Garrett sang a contralto solo with piano accompaniment by Mrs. H. Claud Holmes, and A. L. Foster sang a tenor solo with accompaniment by Mrs. A. V. Corley.

Next Sunday night Rev. Yelderman will conclude his series of sermons on education with the theme, "My Life—What I Am and What I'll Be."
